Pats Hang On

The Baltimore Ravens and the New England Patriots have played each other a few times, before this game the Patriots led 5-4 since 2001. But the Ravens looked like they were going to pass the divisional round and tie their series since 2001. The Ravens had a 14-0 lead with 4 minutes left in the 1st. But Tom Brady threw a 46 yard pass to Rob Gronkowski, which was followed by a Tom Brady run touchdown 4 plays later. Danny Amendola would tie the game, but at the end of the half, Owen Daniels caught a touchdown pass. Justin Forsett would get another touchdown in the 3rd, but Gronkowski would score and Julian Edelman would pass to Danny Amendola for the score. It was tied into the fourth and then Justin Tucker kicked a field goal for a 3 point Baltimore lead, but Brady threw a touchdown pass to Brandon LaFell, which would be the winning score. Duron Harmon would intercept Flacco to clinch the Conference Round.

In The Rulebook

An ineligible receiver is a confusing thing in football. A player that is ineligible to catch a pass are players who are not on either end of their line or at least one yard behind it when the ball is snapped and a player that is numbers 50-79 and haven't told a referee about being eligible. But if a player has notified the referee that he will be eligible, he may catch a pass, even if he isn't a receiver.

Rex Staying In New York

Rex Ryan has been coaching the New York Jets since 2009. The Jets had a bad offense and an okay defense, but Rex had to fix the offense, which wasn't what he was good at. He is good at defense, not offense. Still, he brought the Jets to 2 AFC Championship games, but lost. He didn't do anything after that, which was 2011. Rex and the Jets haven't done anything in the last 3 years. They picked Geno Smith as their Quarterback, which wasn't a good pick, they got Michael Vick and didn't start him, which was bad, so what did he do? He said bye. To the Jets, not New York. He was picked up this week by the Buffalo Bills. He is getting a 5-year $5.5 Million dollar deal. He will be able to finally be able to make the not-so-good defense better and work with them, while a good offensive coordinator can help on the not-so-good offense.
