The Royals Stay Loyal

Yet another time do the Royals come out the winners in a lucky game, this time against the mighty A's.

The Royals were down by 1, 7-6. At one point in the game, they were down 7-3. Now it's the ninth inning. Jarrod Dyson is on base, as he just stole third. Nori Aoki, the stunning defensive player, is up at the plate. Then the ball is hit near outfielder Josh Reddick. Now there is two outs. But it's also a tie game now. Into extra innings we go. Nothing happens in the tenth or eleventh innings. Now we enter the twelfth with a tied ball game. Jed Lowrie sacrifice bunts and Josh Reddick advances to second. Now there's a man on second and one out. Now, Alberto Collaspo, the pinch hitter, is at the plate with one out. Alberto makes good contact and gets a single. Josh Reddick scores on the single and the A's take an 8-7 lead. Now onto the bottom of the twelfth. Eric Hosmer comes home on a soft grounder to Josh Donaldson. Now the game is tied. Now there's a man on first and nobody out with Alex Gordon batting. Gordon pops out in foul territory. Now one out with a man on first and Salvador Perez batting. Christian Colon steals second. After that, Perez hits a ground ball into left field and that will score Colon and that is the season for the Oakland Athletics.

Tom Watson's Comments

Tom Watson, USA Ryder Cup captain, is said to have made mean comments at a team meeting. "You stink at foursomes," Watson started with, according to ESPN. Even though that silly comment was made, the USA team gave a replica of the Ryder Cup to him and another silly comment was, "This gift means nothing to me if you guys don't win the real Ryder Cup," from ESPN. Then, the whole room changed. Phil Mickelson took over. "Phil went player by player and told a story about each player," an unnamed source reported afterward according to ESPN. "It changed the tenor of the room from completely negative and heads down to 'Let's give this a go tomorrow.' He almost gave a 180 degrees difference than Tom did."
