NFL Preseason

The NFL Preseason has recently started, and here are some stats you might want to know. The team with the most passing yards would be the Jacksonville Jaguars, with 749 over 3 games, but they are the team that has been sacked the most, at 9. The team with the most touchdowns are the Kansas City Chiefs, with 9 in 3 games. The best field goal kicking teams are the Carolina Panthers and the Chicago Bears, both 7-7.

MLB Surprise Teams

Many teams have surprised everyone, some doing very well and some doing bad. First, the Mets. The Mets have surprised a ton of people because they have started to win. And lucky for them, the second place Nationals keep losing. The Nationals were predicted to be the best team in baseball, not just their division. But they haven't met that expectation. Next, the Astros. The Astros went on a little streak at the beginning, but that didn't make many people think that they could eventually take a big lead. And instead of the Angels behind them, they have the Rangers, who haven't done well in a while. Now while the Astros keep wining, so do the Rangers, which is keeping these 2 teams within 4 games. Another surprise team are the Bluejays, who are now in first place over the Yankees. At the beginning of the season, the Bluejays weren't playing as good as the Yankees, but with great pickups like SS Troy Tulowitzki and P David Price, the Bluejays have claimed up the standings to jump above the Yankees. Another surprise team are the Tigers. They were supposed to do so good this year, maybe even make it back to the playoffs again. But, you can forget about that because the Tigers are in last place in their division and second to last in the wild card, only the A's behind them. The best division is the NL Central, which has maybe the top 3 teams in baseball: The Cardinals, with the best record in the MLB, the Pirates and Cubs, who are both currently the top 2 teams in the NL wild card. Maybe these surprise teams can make the playoffs.
