

THE SPORTIER

The Nats Great Fall

At the beginning of the 2015 MLB season, everyone thought that the Nationals were easily going to be the best team in the MLB. Not just the NL East, but the whole Major Leagues. But now, they can't even win a single game! They are getting even farther from the top, as the Mets fly through their schedule. At one point in the year, the Nationals were up by 7 games! Now, they are down by 9.5 games going into today. There are only few games left in the regular season, and if what is happening now continues, that means that the Nationals would have given up a 7 game division lead. That is not good.

Did You Know?

The game of tug of war actually was an Olympic sport! It only lasted from 1900-1920, though.

Source: Did-You-Knows

First 2015 NFL Sunday

Today is the first day of Sunday football this year! Some match ups are great, and some are just boring. A great match up is tonight's game, Giants vs. Cowboys, a classic rivalry. We will get to see how the Cowboys play without their star running back, DeMarco Murray, who was signed by the Eagles in the offseason. Another good game is Titans vs. Buccaneers, where Marcus Mariota and Jameis Winston will make their debut, having already played each other this year on January 1st, where Mariota's Oregon Ducks defeated Winston's Florida St. Seminoles. Those are the good games this week, and be ready to see more great games as the season progresses.

