

THE SPORTIER

Bucks End Warriors Winning Streak

Last night, for the first time this year, the Golden State Warriors lost their first game. After going on a 24-0 streak, the Milwaukee Bucks ended the streak. This winning streak will go into history as the 2nd longest winning streak in NBA history, only behind the Los Angeles Lakers from the year 1971-72, who had a 33 game winning streak that went from November of 1971 to January of 1972. Curry predicted that the Warriors would lose before the Carolina Panthers football team, which turns out, he was right.

Sources: ESPN, Wikipedia

Derrick Henry Wins Heisman

Last night, Alabama running back Derrick Henry won the Heisman Award. The other 2 nominees for the Heisman Award were Stanford running back Christian McCaffrey and Clemson quarterback Deshaun Watson, who both also had good seasons. This year, Derrick Henry has a total of 1986 rushing yards, 23 rushing touchdowns, and 97 receiving yards, and 0 receiving touchdowns. He scored a total of 138 points, which is more than freshman and sophomore years combined. McCaffrey has less rushing yards than Henry, but many more receiving yards at 540 and 4 receiving touchdowns. Deshaun Watson has 3512 passing yards with 30 passing touchdowns, and has 887 rushing yards with 11 rushing touchdowns. McCaffrey finished 293 points off of Henry in the voting and Watson finished 667 points off of Henry.

Source: ESPN

Mets Lose 2, Pick up 2

A few days ago, it looked as though the Mets would have had Ben Zobrist, a 2B/RF that the Mets had made an offer to. But right before Zobrist signed, the Cubs stole Zobrist right away from the Mets. If you were a general manager and you almost had a great player, and then that player signed with a different team, how would you feel? Mad, right? Well, that just how Mets general manager Sandy Alderson felt. So, to cool his anger, Alderson signed 2 new players. First, he traded Pitcher Jon Niese to the Pirates for 2nd Baseman Neil Walker. That covered up the gap that they needed fixed after they released 2nd Baseman Daniel Murphy. But the Mets still were looking for 3 more players: Shortstop, Outfielder, Relief Pitcher. The Mets decided to pick a shortstop, and they found Asdrubal Cabrera, a former Rays shortstop. The Mets still had money, but not enough for a big deal. But luckily, Michael Cuddyer retired, which gave the Mets an extra $12.5 million. Maybe the Mets can bring back Yoenis Cespedes.

Did You Know?

There is a sport in England called shin kicking. Two contestants compete and try and kick each others shins and knock the other person to the ground. In each round, the contestants hold their opponents collar. When a person has had enough, they yell out, "sufficient". The match is surveyed by a referee, or a stickler, who determines the score of the match. Modern matches are decided by who wins 2 of 3 against their opponent. Competitors are required to wear soft shoes and stuff their trouser legs with straw for padding. Ambulances attend the matches in case of injuries.

Source: Wikipedia

